

A SPECTRA FOAM MATTRESS
PROVIDES SUPERIOR COMFORT
AND AN UNEQUALLED
SLEEP EXPERIENCE

Spectra Foam is viscoelastic, open-celled, temperature and weight-sensitive material first developed by NASA for spacecraft seating to protect astronauts against immense G-forces during lift-off.

Q: Why is Spectra Foam different from other foam?

A: Spectra Foam is five times denser than regular foam and temperature sensitive. Spectra Foam molds to your body to give you superior support while eliminating pressure points common with other mattresses. It provides shape-conforming comfort, giving you restful and rejuvenating sleep.

Q: Isn't a firm mattress the best sleep surface?

A: Absolutely Not! Nonconforming sleep surfaces, force your body to adapt to its flat shape. In bending your spine into an unnatural position this creates pressure points at the shoulders, hips and feet, resulting in less restful sleep.

Q: Will Spectra Foam become too warm?

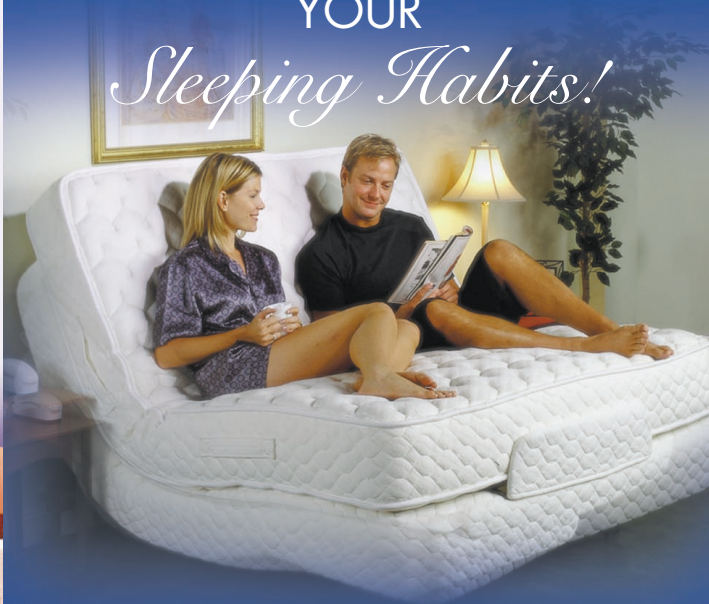

A: Actually, Spectra Foam is self-ventilating. Air is able to circulate through the open cells of the foam, which helps to dissipate body heat. Sleep surface utilizes Quiltflex® material to reduce impressions and whisk away moisture.

Q: How will Spectra Foam affect my health?

A: Symptoms of asthma, back pain, arthritis, stress, and problems with circulation have all been reduced or relieved by using this product. Also, it is naturally hypoallergenic, dust mite and mold resistant.

An Advanced Comfort Adjustable bed is an intelligent investment in good health, excellent rest and total relaxation! With today's hectic lifestyles it's more important to use relaxation time to the fullest.
